One night, Bernardo and Horatio sees the ghost of King Hamlet while guarding the castle. Horatio tells Prince Hamlet about the ghost, and the prince decide to watch and wait for the ghost at night.

When the ghost appears, it tells the prince to go follow him, however no-one is certain whether the ghost is really the ghost of King Hamlet or a devil in disguise, but the Prince risks his life and listens to the ghost. The ghost then admits that he really is the ghost of his father, King Hamlet.

People thought that King Hamlet died from a snake bite, but the ghost then tells his son that his uncle, Cladius, has poisoned him while he was sleeping by putting poison into his ear.

This was shocking to Prince Hamlet, the ghost then goes on to seek revenge on his uncle by killing him, but not his mother because she did not know. Prince Hamlet then promises to seek revenge on King Cladius.

The prince decides to act crazy to successfully kill Claudius without suspicion. Some believe he is crazy because his love between Ophelia did not workout well because Ophelia had to give up her love for the prince because they would be unable to get married and Hamlet was too powerful to be with Ophelia. Some also believe that Hamlet is crazy because of his father's death

Hamlet ends up killing 6 people. First, he kills Polonius, father of Ophelia and Laertes by stabbing him because he was spying on him and Queen Gertrude. Hamlet then kills Rosencratz and Guildenstern by hanging them to death because they were also spying on Hamlet. Ophelia and Laertes are depressed about Polonius' death and Ophelia ends up killing herself.

This causes Laertes, Ophelia's brother and Polonius' son, to seek revenge to Hamlet by having a sword fight. Hamlet then wins the fight by stabbing Laertes with his poisonous sword.

Queen Gertrude then dies by accidentally drinking out of a poisoned filled wine while cheering for the prince. The wine was actually for the prince, so he becomes furious then goes and stabs King Claudius with his poisonous sword and pours poisoned wine down the King's throat, killing him.

Before Hamlet died, he mentioned that the throne should be passed to Prince Fortinbras of Norway and dies with his last words “The rest is silence.”
